Tekst 1

We've just received additional information about the enormous earthquake that took place just off the Japanese coast a few minutes ago. As of now, no data on the number of casualties is available yet, but hundreds of people are feared to have lost their lives and thousands more to have been injured. Unfortunately, the survivors of the earthquake are about to face their gravest danger as a gigantic tsunami is heading towards the coast. That's it for now and ...

Good morning. Let me tell you about a few important details before I give you some more information on display here. As you can see the rooms are quite small and there are quite a few of you so, I'd appreciate it if you got a bit closer and listened carefully. I'll tell you about the history of prisons in our country and you will have a chance to visit several rooms that look exactly the same as actual cells. At the end you will have a chance to sit on a real prison bed which was brought here from one of the most secure prisons in the country. So, let's begin with the display...

Olivia: Hi, Liam. I've heard you've given up eating meat?

Liam: Yeah, that's true. Why?

Olivia: Because I'd like to know your reasons? You love burgers so much.

Liam: Yeah, I do, but a number of my vegetarian friends have told me how much better they felt when they stopped being meat eaters. I'd also like to lose a few pounds so, I thought cutting the burgers out of my daily diet might help with that. And there's one more thing. Serious scientific reports show that meat production is responsible for a lot of environmental damage.

Olivia: So, you want to be greener by eating more plants?

Liam: Sounds funny, huh? You know what, why don't you let me explain how it works in this new vege bar in the Old Town?

Olivia: Why not? Tomorrow after school?

Liam: That's fine. See you there. Bye.

Olivia: Bye.

We'd like to welcome you to today's fashion show. You'll have a unique opportunity to see the latest collection by Mariko Kurasawa. The talented, young designer from Tokyo specialises in woollen clothes and today's show will be no different. You'll have a chance to admire casual colourful pullovers and vests as well as elegant suits. However, I'd like you to pay special attention to the accessories. The bronze and silver earrings, gold and silver necklaces, and absolutely out-of-this-earth woollen belts turn Kurasawa's creations into fashion masterpieces.

Wypowiedź 2

My best friend says that I have no sense of fashion. She keeps telling me that I'll never find a boyfriend if I wear baggy sweaters and jeans. But you know what? I don't really need a boyfriend who likes me because I'm wearing a matching scarf or a chic necklace. I want someone who appreciates me for who I am and not for how I dress. Once I find such a guy, for our first date I will choose clothes that will take his breath away. I might even ask my best friend for advice then.

Wypowiedź 3

Wypowiedź 4

Many young people pay attention to the clothes they wear as they help them express themselves and they want to be accepted by their peers. It may seem irritating to their parents that their children are willing to spend half of their savings on a rather ugly – in their parents' opinion – pair of sneakers but more often than not these shoes guarantee them status and show their position in their peer group. Fortunately, most teenagers grow out of this tendency rather quickly once they have to pay for their clothes themselves.

Emily: Hi Josh. What's up?

Josh: I've just finished talking to my cousin from Poland. You remember Kasia, don't you?

Emily: Yeah, I do. How is she?

Josh: She's fine, but she's thinking about doing something that, I think, she might regret one day.

Emily: Is she getting involved in some illegal business?

Josh: Kasia? A criminal? No. Absolutely not. She'd never hurt a fly. She's been considering changing schools for a few months and now she's about to do it.

Emily: How's that bad?

Josh: She used to want to be an IT specialist, but she's had a change of heart and she's set her mind on studying media. So, she's changing schools to focus on Polish and history instead of maths and physics.

Emily: I still don't see any problem with that. If you were in her shoes, would you continue something totally pointless instead of doing something that you're into?

Josh: But she's got her finals in less than half a year. What happens if she fails?

Emily: Come on, Josh. You sound like her parents. Don't you understand the importance of doing something you enjoy in life? You're lucky because you love maths and physics, and you've known who you want to be since you were 7, but some people need more time to figure out what's best for them. My dad switched from studying medicine to economics after his first term at university and he hasn't regretted his decision for a second. How old was Kasia when she chose this school with the extended maths and physics programme?

Josh: It was three years ago so she was 16. How is that relevant?

Emily: You really don't see it? Most teens haven't got a clue about their future at this age. Most of our friends have no idea what to do after their finals and we're a few years older and more experienced.

Josh: That's exactly the point. What if she's wrong again? Wouldn't it be safer to finish what's started?

Emily: And live a miserable life with a job that she resents. You know what? I suppose I'll talk to Kasia and let her know that there are people who support her decision. What do her parents think?

Josh: She hasn't told them yet. But she expects that her mum will be furious and her dad will be pretty cool about it. He never seems to lose his temper.

Emily: Well, she's got at least one person to support her, and me, of course. Hope you don't mind if I contact Kasia, do you?

Josh: Actually, I do, but I understand that it won't stop you from doing that. Am I right?

Emily: Absolutely. You know me well enough to realise that once I make up my mind there's no stopping me. And now I have to end our lovely chat as mum's phoning me. Gotta go. Bye.

Josh: Bye, Emily. Have a good day.
